TO THE LIGHT-HOUSE.

Ye who have sought the distant wave, can tell What mingled feelings crowd about the O! I have seen the Wanderer depart, And no one bless him—No one said farewell.
[deep—
The night gloom'd dark upon the restless No sound was heard—save the lone sew-mew's wail—
It made the Wanderer start—his cheek turn'd pale— [tower's steep, His eye glanc'd wildly on the watch-He smote his burning brow, and turn'd away to weep.

Hail trembling beam of fairy light, Gem of the stormy sea!
The stars still shun a fearful night,
And leave its ills to thee.
So when Misfortune glooms around, Ev'n Friendship's pageant flies, Her taper smoulders on the ground,
And slowly guttering—dies!
The Exile needs no beacon fair,
Nor gaudy light of day,
For he who wanders with Despair,
Shall seldom miss his way.
When the cold wind is high, and the red lightnings gleam, [crest, And the wave wears a white foaming How wild is the glance of thy flickering beam,
Like a gem on the storm spirit's breast.

There is no beacon near the bowers Where faulting we expire:
How eagerly we seek the flowers,
And find, alas! the briars.
There is no beacon near the maid That smiles so rosy sweet—Though often what the Sybil said, Was grounded on deceit.
Go slumber, ye who daggers bear, Or hurl the murderer's dart; Ye are less guilty than the fair, Who breaks the trusting heart.
The Exile needs no beacon fair,
Nor gaudy light of day,
For he who wanders with Despair,
Shall seldom miss his way. H. T. P.

THE BRIEF REMARKER.

"Wisdom and folly meet, mix and unite, Virtue and vice blend their black and their white."

Inferior animals of the same kind have, in general, a sameness of physiognomy, and so trifling are the shades of difference between them in any respect, that the portraiture of one individual describes the whole species.
But as human animals are moral and accountable, and subject to law, a marvellous provision is made in the divine economy for the identification of every individual, in so far that each is distinguishable from each, by the look, by the voice, by the gait, by the hand writing, and by several other modes of difference, hardly de-scribable, though plainly perceivable.
Were it otherwise, the Judge might be mistaken for the thief; the innocent and the guilty would be blended together without the possibility of making any legal discrimination between them.

The differences are no fewer, but perhaps more multiform, in the features of mind. So that if the minds of mankind were as visible as their bodies, the individuality of each person might perhaps be as clearly determined, from the former as from the latter.

Of the different features of mind, relating to qualities of heart as they appear in overt act, the following are complex; in sketching which, I am constrained, for the sake of necessity, brevity, to personify the twenty-six letters of the alphabet.

—Is noble spirited, but not charitable: in a public subscription his name figures well, but a Lazarus might stare at his gate.

—Is quite candid enough, in respect to practice, but if you thwart his speculative opinions, he is like a bear.

—Is a woman, peevish and querulous about little things:—her heavy eyelids she bears with pious resignation, and with more than masculine fortitude.

D—Enters with spirit into a laudable public undertaking, so the plan come from him, or he have the direction of it, else he will have nothing at all to do with the business, not he.

E—Lives in the practice of vice: but would insult a man that should say ought derogatory of the principles of virtue.

F—Takes pride in railing against pride: he hates the pride of fashion, and is proud of being out of the fashion.

G—And his rib, abroad or in company are all butter and honey:— their ill nature they save for domestic use.

H—Is easy of temper, but very far from being compassionate: his easiness of temper is nothing but apathy.

I—Is good or ill-tempered, by fits and starts; now he is so pleasant that nothing can anger him—then again, he is so toady that nothing can please him.

J—Is rough and impetuous, but of a feeling heart; his mind, as respects anger, is like spunk wood, that in a moment catches fire, which as quickly goes out.

K—Is slow to anger, but much slower to be appeased; once affront him and he is cool your enemy forever.

L—Is not hard to be reconciled in a matter in which the fault lies altogether on the other side; but when he has been in fault himself, the consciousness of it stirs his pride and stiffens his temper.

M—Feels strongly whatever relates to himself: other people's misfortunes he bears with singular callousness of fortitude.

N—Though possessed of no extraordinary share of wisdom, is affronted if you decline following his advice, and is equally affronted if any one presumes to advise him.

O—A's cringing sycophancy to superiors might be thought humility were he not brutally imperious and overbearing to inferiors and dependants.

P—Loudly complains of the needy friends he abandons, to escape the reproach of abandoning them in their need.

Q—Frequently changes her friends for a slight cause, or for no cause, and always likes the last best;— with her, friendship is like a nosegay, which pleases only while it is fresh.

R—Would appear well enough, but for his affectation of appearing mighty well, which makes him appear below himself; the vanity of being thought important rendering him redigious.

S—Tame acquiesces in what is generally believed, because it is generally believed he wants no other proof of the truth of a thing, than its having a plurality of numbers on its side.

T—Runs into extravagant singularities, from the vanity of appearing to be possessed of superior understanding.

U—Would not be suspected of dishonesty, but for his frequently boasting that he is honest—nor want of veracity, but for his habit of propping his word and promise with asseverations.

V—Passes for wise, because he is taciturn—peradventure not so much from gravity, as stupidity.

W—Could please every body with the eloquence and good sense of his conversation, if he only knew when to have done.

X—A lady of fashion, affects exquisite sensibility, by her look, her manner, and her tones of voice—such is her tenderness, that she weeps over high life scenes of fictitious distress; and such is her obduracy, that she regards with unfeeling indifference those vulgar objects of real distress that have claims upon her practical charity.

Y—A philosopher of the school of cosmopolites, possesses a fund of speculative benevolence, which he often makes use of in word; but never in deed:—like his prototype, the pagan philosopher Seneca, who wrote an excellent book upon charity—but though he was rich, he gave nothing away.

Z—Endeavours to commote for his neglects and trespasses in some things by a grave and penitential exactness in others. He will go miles to church on a stormy day—in his general deal he is not altogether a hard honest man, but hardly honest.

ANECDOTE.

A counsel at the old Bailey in cross examining a witness, asked him among other questions, where he was on a particular day? To which he replied "he was in company with two friends." "Friends," exclaimed the counsel, "two thieves I suppose you mean." "They may be so," replied the witness, "for they are both lawyers."

ALEXANDRIA:

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1817.

From the Allegany Federalist.

The subject of the following letter (a case of dropsy) appears to be of some importance to mankind; therefore, we with pleasure give it publicly, together with the reply of Dr. Newman to gen. Young.

Extract of a letter from general Robert Young, of Alexandria, to Dr. R. Newman, of Old Town, Allegany, Md.
Alexandria, Nov. 1, 1817.

DEAR SIR,—To my God I am grateful for my returning health; and to you I present my best thanks for your advice as to the means that ought to be pursued.
I look back with astonishment at the influence the few moments' conversation I had with you in Old Town had on my mind. From believing that to bleed, as taught by my physicians, would hasten my death, I became firmly fixed in the opinion, that to bleed, as you directed, would give me health. My friends and physicians were all opposed to your plan of cure; but, firm in the advice you had given, I sent for Dr. Culbertson, of Cham-berburg, who had been attached to the army, and I supposed accustomed to blood, who bled me as follows:

Blood drawn from general Young by Dr. Culbertson.
July 13,	30 oz.
14,	16
16,	24
19,	24
23,	32
27,	36
29,	36

198 oz.
I found the stiffness leaving my legs and knees, and the paralysis of my arm relieved after the fourth bleeding; and after the sixth bleeding I was able to raise either of my feet as high as the table, and my pulse became more regular.

The water in the abdomen not being diminished, I determined, as you directed, to be bled. Dr. Culbertson attended with Dr. Dean, and drew off 40 pints of water; and the next day took 2 pounds of blood, and the day following the same quantity; making, in the whole, 262 ounces. The water appeared to increase for five days, and then began to decline, and continued declining until I came to my natural size, and my pulse regular.

I wished the doctor to have continued the bleeding, and he afterwards regretted he had not bled me twice more. For some days I was too weak to ride on horseback, but have since returned to my family. I have acquired a good deal of flesh, but am still weak. Some physicians say that if Dr. Rush could be permitted, he would rise out of his grave and proclaim to the world the further success of blood-letting!

Dr. Conrad, of Winchester, says you ought to report the case to a gentleman who is now writing a book on the success of medicine in Philadelphia; and assured me that he would write to you on the subject.

As I was not able to write when I left my father's, I requested Dr. Culbertson to write to you, and to mention my recovery. He is an amiable man, and one with whom I wish you to be acquainted.
Most of the physicians with whom I converse are astonished at the bleeding; and many of them would not bleed at all—even Dr. Culbertson bled me on my own responsibility. Does it not show the force of the impression you made on my mind, when I pursued your directions in opposition to my friends, my father, and my physicians? And now permit me to request that when you visit this part of the country that you will do me the favor to call on me.

Wishing you health and happiness, I am your most obedient,
ROBT. YOUNG.

Old Town, Allegany, Md.
November 8, 1817.

DEAR SIR,—I received your letter, announcing your recovery, last evening.
It gave me the most exquisite pleasure on your own account, and furnishes me an opportunity of opening the way to a new field for medical investigation.

I hazard nothing, sir, in stating that the dropsical disease has been less understood by pathologists than any other in the whole round of nosology; but I hope the time is not far distant when it will be rendered as harmless as a quartan fever.

Permit me, sir, to tender you my thanks for your persevering firmness in opposing your friends and physicians—I expected such an opposition, and I endeavored to guard you against it. You had nothing to fear from blood-letting;— but you had every thing to fear from the diseased actions which pervaded the vascular systems. The foundations of the disease were deeply laid in those systems, and must be broken up, or death would have been the inevitable consequence.— As far as my surgical and medical enquiries have extended, I stand alone as it respects the nature and proper use of the lancet in this formidable disease.

Doctor Hosack, of New York, partially engages in the same pursuit; but he has left the subject beclouded, and his reader bewildered in the midst of hydragogues, squills, calomel, and digitalis. We must arrive at a knowledge of the disease, and its appropriate remedies, through the anatomy and physiology of the vascular systems—their dependencies, connexion, and communications, through the cellular tissue, and their peculiar properties and endowments of life. The principles of animation are diversified, and each system has its appropriate and distinct powers of action.

In all cases of dropsy the circulating mass must be confined principally to the transmitting arteries and veins. The capillary, or secreting system, constitutes the medium of indirect communication between the transmitting vessels and the lymphatics; and upon the cessation of morbid action in this system depends the cure of dropsy.

The morbid actions of this secreting system suffocate and suspend the action of the lymphatics; and to restore to them their suspended power and activity, we must suspend the actions of the secreting system by restraining the circulation to the insulating arteries and veins.
Is it not somewhat curious that the celebrated John Bell should have in an insulated way put the following question?— "Is it not odd, that when we bleed, this should give new power to the lymphatic system?" We now see why digitalis may be a remedy in dropsy, and, also, why it has so often failed. Any sedative is a remedy; and the extent to which blood-letting may be required is, in some measure, exhibited in your case. It may be required, sir, to an extent nearly suspending the action of the heart itself; and the nearer the patient gradually approaches this condition the more certain will be his cure, and he (in the language of lawyers) begins de novo.

Those positions I now offer to the medical world; and I invite investigation.
I may expect opposition theoretically and practically, and I am prepared to meet it.
My object is the promotion of the medical science, and the comfort and happiness of our fellow beings. I invite the attention of anatomists and physiologists —and by a liberal exertion of the intellectual funds of practitioners, aided by anatomy and physiology, we may check this dreadful malady in its advancement, and cure it in its most terrible forms.

The doctrine of debility, which has so long held dominion over our systems of medicine, and which has been patronised by one of our most distinguished professors, forcing millions to an untimely grave—God grant that it may lose its influence in the United States, and be forever exploded, as the greatest and most pervasive source of error in the annals of physic!

Wishing you health and prosperity,
I remain your ob't. serv't.

Baltimore, Nov. 25.

On Wednesday last, Mr. John C. Price of Cecil county in this state, was crossing Bohemia river in a boat, in which were five negro men, one negro woman and a girl, besides six horses and a number of articles of household furniture—when, the horses, alarmed by the dashing of the waves on the side of the boat towards which their heads were turned, moved backwards so far as to cause the boat to fill and go to pieces. Mr. Price, three of the Negro men and the girl were drowned: the negro woman and the two men who rowed the boat, saved themselves by getting hold of a part of the boat which it appears was floating near them.

John Lamarde, the prisoner who was found guilty of murder, as mentioned in the Gazette of Saturday, was confined in a cell as usual.—On Sunday between 2 and 3 o'clock, when the jailer visited him, he found that Lamarde had made an attempt against his own life; having cut a vein in his left arm, supposed with a piece of glass. He appeared to have lost about two quarts of blood: not sufficient to endanger life. He now affects stupor, and refuses to converse or eat any thing.
The physician pronouncing him in danger from the cut, he is put in irons to prevent any similar attempt. ibid.

Letters from Havre of the 7th October, have been received in New-York.—The French government had announced the intention of purchasing tobacco on the 6th Nov. Cotton was dull, and will materially decline on the appearance of the new crop.
Sugar & coffee were in brisk demand, and at advanced prices. ibid.

Cincinnati, Nov. 7.

The Ohio river is at this time unusually high for the season. The rise of its waters has been rapid and unexpected.— It has never been known, at this season of the year, to rise to any thing like its present height. It will however, greatly facilitate the descent of the emigrants, who usually at this season of the year experience a tedious and disagreeable passage, after they get on the river.

Buffalo, Nov. 11.

NIAGARA FALLS—BRIDGE TO GOAT-ISLAND.
Augustus Porter, Esq. the proprietor of the American side of the falls of Niagara, some time since purchased Goat-Island, lying in Niagara river, dividing the falls. This Island, being situated in the rapids, has hitherto been deemed quite inaccessible or dangerous of access, there being only one point to approach it, and that by putting into the river, a mile or more above the falls, and then dropping down between the rapids on the head of the Island; this way, however, could not always be deemed secure, as the least mismanagement of the boat in departing the Island would be fatal. In order therefore to approach the island in safety, and to improve it to advantage, the enterprising proprietor has constructed a bridge 34 rods in length, founded on 14 piers, each pier when filled will contain 50 tons of stone; and, from the size of the piers and their foundation being so solid rock, it is confidently believed that the bridge will be permanent. It is, we understand, the intention of Judge Parter, to cultivate this enchanting island, and erect thereon suitable buildings for the accommodation of strangers and others, who desire to view one of the grandest curiosities of nature, in a new character; the Falls have heretofore been observed on either side of the Niagara river with rapture; but what would counsellor Phillips say, were he perched on this romantic spot? would he not tell you, of the wild roaring rapids above, on either side the vast sheets rolling o'er the dreadful precipices, and the seeming distant thunders in the terrific abyss beneath, the scaring cloud before him pierced by the sun-beam, and decked with the lustre of the rain-bow!

The Island contains about 80 acres of land, is about 100 rods wide, but at the lower end between the falls, it is only 90 rods.

pecting his claims, will at least be read

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM FRANCE.
We are indebted to the kindness of a friend for the following extract of a letter, written by a young man belonging to Chester county, but now pursuing his studies in Paris.

Paris, 8th mo. 51st, 1817.

My Dear B—
There is a strange story very current here, and which for some time has occupied the attention of the multitude almost exclusively—the existence of Louis Se-venteenths. What is very certain is, that a person giving himself this title, is confined at Reuen—and it is said is treated with considerable distinction. It is also said his case will be brought before the house of Peers at their next session. The account he gives of himself is, that he was saved from the temple in 1795, by the washerwoman, in a bundle of dirty clothes, being then nearly eleven years old; that when he arrived at the Vendee his uncles refused to acknowledge him, a report having reached there first, that he had died in the prison, and his uncle, the present king, having been proclaimed.— Thus abandoned, and even become the object of persecution, he sought refuge in foreign countries—was for some time in England under the protection of the government—but that his uncles refusing to acknowledge him, and even making several attempts to take him off by poison, he was advised to withdraw his pretensions and shift for himself. Thus turned upon the world, and afraid of the machinations of his uncles, particularly the count D'Artois, he sought an asylum in his native country, and in the south, where there still remained a great many of the ancient nobility, he led a vagrant kind of life, receiving hospitality, and money, liberally from the inhabitants, under the name of Louis XVII. He at last attracted the attention of Napoleon, who had him arrested—tried, and condemned to two years imprisonment as a swifdler. After the expiration of this time, he was discharged: but pursuing the same course of life—without, however, appearing to have any other object than to procure himself a subsistence—he was again arrested by order of Napoleon, and confined in the castle of Vincennes, where he remained until after the restoration. The governor of the castle refusing to deliver up the keys to any person but the king himself: Here he remained until the return of Napoleon—when in the general confusion he was suffered to escape. He remained in France, living as he had done before, and not disguising his real character, until the second restoration—when he was again arrested and confined in Reuen.

Although this no doubt will appear to be as it did to me at first—the story of a pretender—there are a great many circumstances which rendered it extremely probable. In the first place, the death of the young prince was considered as doubtful. The four physicians who were called in to attend his death, of whom the famous Desault was one, would only certify that a child of that age was dead.
In less than six months they were all cut off, as was the washerwoman. It is also remarkable that since the return of the family, although they have been searching & collecting all the disturbed family bones from Hugh Capet down, nothing has been said about those of Louis XVII. no more than if he had never existed.— His death being thus rendered at least uncertain—let us, presuming his escape, examine how it was effected, and why his uncles afterwards refused to acknowledge him.

It is well known that previous to that time there was a negotiation on foot between the royal uncles and the convention, for his release. The latter demanded as an equivalent, the evacuation of France by the royal and allied troops—During this negotiation, the plan for effecting his escape was laid: 30,000 francs were put to an English cabinet maker named —, residing in Paris, for his son, to substitute him for the prince.

A large dose of opium was given to the child, to substitute his unconscious acquiescent—and in this state, he was transported by the washerwoman, in his basket, and left in the bed of the prince; as believed as I have mentioned. Of course of opium it is said the boy died.
The leaders of the directory perceiving that they were duped—to save themselves from exposure, and to destroy the influence which the opinion of his existence might have in France, immediately declared his sudden death. When this report reached the Vendean army, the royal family, either imposed upon by it, or seeing in it motives to gratify their ambition—declared, at once Louis 18th King. He was hailed as such by the army, and acknowledged by the allied powers—so that, on the arrival of prince, they treated him as an impostor. They may readily conceive the various and powerful motives they all must have had, for this policy; as it opened to them all hopes of wearing the sceptre; or in case of being driven into exile, greater consideration, &c. The manner in which he is said to be treated, since being in the power of his family, I am at a loss to account for—unlike however is very contradictory on this subject.

CRISTIAN AND CRISTIANUS.

val, as marked in the Calendar, is According to the legend, they were brethren, born at Rome, from whence they travelled into Soissons, in France, about the year 503; to propagate the Christian Religion, and because they would not be chargeable to others for their maintenance, they exercised the trade of shoemakers; but the governor of the town discovering them to be christians, ordered them to be beheaded, from which time the shoema-kers have made choice of them for their titular saints.

WAS committed to the jail of this county, as a runaway, a Negro lad, who says his name is HENRY, and that he was sold to some Georgian, from the estate of William Randall, of Fauquier county, Virginia. He is a bright mulatto, about 5 feet 2 or 3 inches high, and has been in the habit of a race rider for Mr. Randall. The said lad ran away at Fredericksburg, on his way out. Thompson, and by him sold to William Galt. It is supposed she is now lurking about the district of Columbia or its vicinity. RAN AWAY, on Saturday evening, the 11th inst. my mulatto man, named NED, commonly called Ned McRAW alias SARAWE. He is about 23 or 24 years of age, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, and was raised in Manchester. Ned is well made, high forehead and large flat nose; had on when he went away a grey coat and pantaloons, but as he was well provided with clothing of various kinds, it is probable he may have changed his dress. It is believed he went off with his wife, who it appears left Richmond at the same time: she is very black, and I believe, somewhat pitted with the small pox, talks a great deal, of short stature, and rather thick made. Ned is very artful, and may probably attempt to pass for a free man; he has a down look when spoken to. The above reward will be given if taken out of Richmond or Manchester, and twenty-five dollars if taken in either place, and all reasonable expenses paid for delivering him to the subscriber.

John Jackson & Co.

James Kennedy & Son,

BOOKSELLERS,

KING-STREET, ALEXANDRIA,

RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from

Lee's Medicine Store,

No. 46, Maiden lane, New-York, a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges,

Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Terebra or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitaria or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tenia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes leanness and some times voracious; purging with slimy and fetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and lowness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

The Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

James Kennedy & Son, September 26 King-st Alexandria.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS and MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended

HAHN'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason to believe that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance; they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Hamilton's Elixir.

A sovereign remedy for colds, obstinate coughs, asthma, sore throats, catarrhs, and approaching consumptions. To persons who have children afflicted with the HOOPING COUGH, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorders to which children are liable. The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Hamilton's Grand Restorative.

Is recommended as an invaluable medicine for the speedy relief and permanent cure of Nervous Disorders, Violent cramps in Consumptions, the stomach and bowels, Loss of appetite, Indigestion, Impurity of blood, Melancholy, Hysterical affection, Gout in the stomach, Inward weakness, Pains in the limbs and debility, Relaxations, etc.

Hamilton's Essence and Extract of Mustard.

A safe and effectual remedy for acute and chronic rheumatism, gut, rheumatic gout, palsy, lumbago, numbness, white swellings, chilblains, sprains, bruises, pain in the face and neck, etc. etc.

Lee's Ointment for the Itch.

Warranted an infallible remedy at one application, may be used with perfect safety by pregnant women, or on infants a week old, not containing a particle of mercury or any dangerous ingredient whatever, and not accompanied with that tormenting smart which attends the application of other remedies.

Hahn's true & genuine German Corn Plaster.

An infallible remedy for corns, speedily removing their root and branch, without giving any pain.

The Genuine Persian Lotion.
